

Serial No. 09/694,050

Remarks:

Examiner Morgan and Examiner Kalinowski are thanked for their courtesies extended to Applicant's undersigned representative and to two representatives from Applicant, one of whom is a co-inventor hereof, during the personal interview conducted on June 12, 2003. During the course of that interview the co-inventor gave a demonstration of the invention, using a prototype working from a laptop computer. The various features of the invention and distinctions between the invention and the prior art were discussed.

Also, during the interview, several specific discussions were conducted with respect to suggestions for amending the independent claims of the application to further define the invention as there was apparently some confusion as to the nature of the invention. Accordingly, the present amendment is being presented to further define the invention by amending the claims as well as adding several additional independent claims to more specifically recite the invention.

The Office is respectfully requested to take this supplemental amendment up and examine the case in light hereof as well as the amendment filed with the RCE on April 28, 2003.

Respectfully submitted,
